PREFACE.

In the following pages is given the history of an average New England family. It begins with a middle class Englishman, a Puritan, who came to New England in the first half of the seventeenth century. His descendants, like the descendants of most of the other Puritan settlers of New England, remained in New England for five or six generations, rapidly multiplying, and then, at the close of the eighteenth century, began to swarm westward. At the present time only a small portion of his descendants are found in New England. The great majority of them are scattered over the northern half of the United States between the Hudson River and the Pacific Ocean, and are particularly numerous in the states of New York, Michigan and Iowa. The history of this New England family in regard to its geographical distribution is an epitome of the history of the whole New England people, who, almost exclusively by the natural increase of a small number of early comers, grew in a century and a half sufficiently numerous to fill their bleak corner of territory, and then, after the Revolution, still rapidly increasing, swarmed westward in a continuous stream, transforming the western wilderness into states of a greater New England, and stamping the Yankee name and character on the whole United States.

The account here given of the emigrant, William Cornwall, and the first five or six generations of his descendants is founded on an extensive examination of early New England records of various sorts, colony, town, church, probate, etc. The account of the more recent generations is chiefly derived from data supplied by correspondents or taken from printed books. No doubt some errors will be found in this work, and for errors that may be found in the account of the early generations the compiler pleads in excuse, that circumstances often compelled him to make very hurriedly the examination of the original records on which that account is founded. For errors found in the history of the later generations he may be not altogether to blame. And it is not at all his fault that the accounts of some of the recent branches of the family are comparatively meager.

The attempt has been made to include in this book an account of every one of the descendants of William Cornwall born to his surname, and though it has not been successful, the number of those not included is comparatively small.

In nearly all cases the marriages of female members of the family are given, and in a majority of cases an account of their descendants is given for one or more generations.

In the arrangement of the genealogy, simplicity and convenience have been aimed at. After the account of William Cornwall, his descendants are described in regular order to the fifth generation; but the descendants of each one of the fifth generation are given in a bunch, so that those nearly related will find themselves grouped together in the book.

Each descendant of William Cornwall of his surname has a regular number. When he appears as the head of a family this number is inclosed in curves. The plus sign after an individual's name indicates that he will appear farther on as the head of a family. Descendants through females are described immediately after the first mention of their names. The children of each of the females are numbered, 1, 2, 3, etc., her grandchildren, (1), (2), (3), etc., her great-grandchildren, i, ii, iii, etc., and her great-great-grandchildren, i, ii, iii, etc. The abbreviations employed are those in common use.

The book is a history of the family as well as a genealogy. Trivialities, except in the case of the earlier generations, where they are interesting on account of their antiquity, have been to a large extent excluded, but such facts as military services, political honors, academic degrees, particular business success, and other facts of general interest, have been noted as fully as possible. A special attempt has been made to give an account of the services of the twenty-two members of the family who served in the Revolution; and the two Tories of the family have not been overlooked. The only titles mentioned are professional titles, academic titles, and titles which indicate commissions in the army, navy or militia.

In an appendix is given brief accounts of other emigrants of the name of Cornwall who came to America during Colonial times; also a few notes on early English families of the name, and some facts about the spelling of the name.

The form Cornwall has been used uniformly in this book for the spelling of the name, though many of the descendants of William Cornwall still spell it Cornwell. In how many other different ways they spelled it formerly may be seen in the appendix. The reasons for using the form Cornwall uniformly in this book are first, because the majority of William's descendants at the present time so spell it, and second, because the spelling of this surname should follow the spelling of the name of the English county from which it is derived, which is now fixed as Cornwall.

It is a cause of regret to the writer that in this account of the family of William Cornwall he has not been able to include some notice of every one of his descendants of the name. He hopes that those few who are not here included, as they discover themselves, will communicate with him, so that he may include them in a second edition, if that should ever be called for. Any corrections, also, will be gladly received.

There are many persons to whom the writer is greatly indebted for assistance in this compilation. He wishes to acknowledge particular indebtedness to Mrs. Jane M. Taft of Burlington, Vt., to the late Mr. Horace Cornwall of Hartford, Conn., and to his grandfather, Mr. David Cornwall, late of Portland, Conn.

WILLIAM CORNWALL AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

WILLIAM CORNWALL.

An interesting tradition has been handed down concerning William Cornwall. A tolerably circumstantial version of this tradition was put into writing by the grandfather of the compiler of this book, Mr. David Cornwall (born 1790, died 1874), who began to collect materials for a Cornwall genealogy in 1824. He did not proceed very far with the undertaking, and most of his papers relating to it have been lost, but fortunately his version of the Family Tradition was preserved.

According to this version of the tradition, William Cornwall came from England to New England in the reign of Charles I; he was accompanied by two brothers, one of whom went to Long Island and afterwards returned to England to recover an estate which had been confiscated; this brother, or William himself, had been an officer in King Charles's body-guard; William was a Cavalier and not a Puritan; he received a grant of land in Connecticut for services in fighting the Indians.

Other versions of this tradition give the number of brothers who accompanied William Cornwall to America as one, two, and three; and one version says he had a brother in England who was an earl. All versions agree that one brother came with him who went to Long Island; and in at least two branches of the family the tradition of his connection with the King's body-guard has been preserved.

Notwithstanding the circumstantiality of this tradition and the persistency with which its main points have been held in different branches of the family, it would not deserve serious consideration if it did not have some documentary support. Fortunately, documentary evidence in support of its principal assertions has been found, and this makes its other assertions less improbable.

The statement made in one version of the tradition, that William Cornwall had a brother in England who was an earl, is not true. There was no earl of the name of Cornwall in England at that time, and the only contemporary nobleman of the name was not his brother. But it is possible that his family may have belonged to the lesser gentry, to which class many of the Puritan settlers of New England belonged; and if his family owned an estate in England during the troubled times between 1620 and 1660 its confiscation would not have been an unusual event. There is nothing in his character or career, as shown by the New England records, which is inconsistent with such an origin.

The statement that he was a Cavalier and not a Puritan seems incorrect in face of the fact that the first notice which we have of him in America is the record of his membership in a Puritan church. But he may have been a recent convert to Puritanism, and have come to New England in consequence of his conversion; and his family in England may have been Cavaliers, and have suffered in consequence during Cromwell's ascendancy. If we accept the tradition about the "King's body-guard," it is not difficult to understand that his conversion to Puritanism might have lost him his position in the King's household.

Of the brother who went to Long Island we have what seems to be good documentary evidence. Shortly after the first appearance of William Cornwall in Hartford, Connecticut, we find the record of a Thomas Cornwall there. There is only one record of this Thomas Cornwall in Connecticut, but two years later, in the records of the Reformed Dutch Church in New Amsterdam, we find an account of the marriage of "Thomas Cornelis, of Hertfordshire, England." This Thomas Cornwall joined the English settlement at Gravesend, Long Island, and died there in 1650. He did not return to England to claim a confiscated estate,—that statement may have been a distorted allusion to some fact or an ornamental frill added to the tradition,—but he certainly failed to return to Connecticut, which one version of the tradition says was the case. An account of this Thomas Cornwall is given in the Appendix, and also an account of another contemporary Thomas Cornwall, who may have been related to William.

The traditionary statement that William Cornwall was an "officer in the King's body-guard" seems to be confirmed by the early records of Hartford, Connecticut. This subject will be discussed in another place.

The statement that he received a grant of land in Connecticut for military services in the Indian wars is also supported by documentary evidence and will be alluded to again.

Taking this tradition for what it is worth, we learn from it that William Cornwall was born in England, near the beginning of the seventeenth century, of respectable parents of the middle class; that he probably served for a time as one of the little corps of sixteen sergeants-at-arms who were in attendance on Charles I; that he became a Puritan, and emigrated to New England in company with one brother who went to Long Island.

In what part of England William Cornwall was born we can only conjecture, but the fact that many of the early settlers of Hartford, Conn., with whom he joined himself at an early date, were from Hertfordshire, and the fact that his probable brother, Thomas Cornwall, who married in New York in 1642, was from Hertfordshire, both point to that English county as the place of his origin.

Leaving tradition, we will now follow William Cornwall's history as it is given in the New England records. The first record which we have of him is found in the Reverend John Eliot's list of the members of his church in Roxbury, Massachusetts, which includes the names of

> "William Cornewell,
> "Joane Cornewell, the wife of Williã Cornewell."

The date 1633 is given just before and just after the entry of these names.

No further record of him is found in Roxbury, but we have evidence that in May, 1637, he was one of the seventy-seven soldiers, all but nineteen of whom were from Hartford and the other Connecticut River towns, who attacked and all but exterminated the Pequot Indians in their fort at Mystic. Whether he was in Hartford before this campaign, or came from Massachusetts with Captain John Underhill, and was one of the nineteen soldiers of Captain Underhill's company who joined the little Connecticut force under Captain Mason at Saybrook, is an open question. It is certain that he was settled in Hartford very soon after the Pequot expedition.

In 1638, the next year after the Pequot fight, he accompanied Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Goodwin in an expedition sent by the Colony of Connecticut to consummate the purchase of Stratford from the Indians. Many years later, in 1659, the Reverend John Higginson, who acted as interpreter for this expedition, gave testimony concerning it which he ends as follows: "And I suppose if Mr. Goodwin is asked he can say the same thing for substance as I do, and William Cornwell at Sebrook, who was there." Mr. Higginson, in 1659, evidently thought that William Cornwall was living in Saybrook; he was, in fact, living in Middletown at that time.

In 1639, when the land records of Hartford begin, William Cornwall had a house lot of eight acres in the village, "no. 54, west of South Street, south from the Lane," which corresponds to a location near the north end of the present Village Street. One half of his house lot lay in the "Souldier's Field," a choice tract which was divided among the veterans of the Pequot War. His possession at this early date of a share of the "Souldier's Field" confirms the family tradition that he received a grant of land for military services against the Indians. The total amount of land recorded to him in Hartford in 1639 was about sixteen acres.

Though an early settler in Hartford, he was not one of the original proprietors of the town. We find his name third in a list of forty-two householders who, in 1640, held their rights of pasturage on the Common and of drawing wood and water "by the courtise of the town."

In the earliest record of his land in Hartford, which is dated Feb., 1639, he is styled "William Cornwell, Sergeant-at-Arms." In view of the statement in the Family Tradition that William Cornwall had been "an officer in the King's body-guard," and because of the difficulty of accounting for the presence in this early Hartford record of the unusual title, Sergeant-at-Arms, in any other way than by taking it as a reference to his position in England, it is not unreasonable to suppose that William Cornwall had been in England one of the sixteen sergeants-at-arms, who, in the time of Charles I, were devoted to the special service of the King, while four more were attendant on the Houses of Parliament and the Lord Chancellor. It is easy to believe that the Hartford recorder put this title after William Cornwall's name because he had known him in England and the position which he held there. It is also significant that in this first record in Hartford of the name Cornwall it is spelled with the w, while in the earliest known autograph of William Cornwall (1648), as well as in his signature to his will, the w is omitted. Had not the recorder been sufficiently acquainted with William Cornwall's family in England to know how the name should be spelled, he would probably have entered it, as it appears in so many other early records, in the corrupted form Cornell. (See The Spelling of the Name in the Appendix.)

It was probably about 1639 that William Cornwall married his second wife, Mary, who, it is highly probable, was the mother of all his children who are mentioned in his will; she certainly was the mother of his daughter Sarah. Of his first wife, Joane, no record has been found other than the mention of her name in the list of the members of the Roxbury church.

He removed before March 5, 1648, from the village of Hartford to the east side of the Connecticut River at Hocanum. On that date he bound out his second son, William, who was seven years old, to Susannah Hooker of Hartford, widow of the Reverend Thomas Hooker, with provision for his education. The original indenture in the handwriting of Governor Edward Hopkins is still in existence.

Sept. 6, 1649, "at a perticular Court in Hartford," he was sued and judgment was rendered against him: "Thos. Osmore, plt. contra William Cornewell, defendt. in an action of the case, to the damage of 4 l."

In 1650 or 1651 he removed with the first settlers to Middletown, fifteen miles below Hartford on the Connecticut River. There his house lot of five acres, with ten acres on the opposite side of the street, was in the center of the village, "Lower Houses," "near ye landing place, by ye spring," at the southwest corner of the junction formed by the highway leading up from the river and the highway running north and south, which corresponds to the corner of the present Main and Washington Streets.

His lands in Middletown were first formally recorded Feb. 30, 1657, though a grant to him is alluded to as early as March 15, 1652, about which time the land records begin. The total amount recorded to him is nine hundred and three acres. Besides this amount he had a "great lot over the Great River" and an original proprietor's share in the undivided lands of the township. His descendants received this share whenever a new division was made. In a deed dated 1775 allusion is made to land "which was laid out in the right of old Sergeant Cornwell."

He was representative from Middletown in the Colonial Legislature in 1654, 1664 and 1665. He was constable in 1664.

In 1666 he received a grant of land in East Hartford of twenty-four acres in a general division. This may have been given to him as a veteran of the Pequot War, but it is more likely that he received it as a citizen of Hartford, his rights in which he may have retained. The grant of land referred to in the family tradition was no doubt his four acres in the "Souldier's Field."

In 1667 the General Court at Hartford "freed William Cornwell's head from the paying of rates."

"3d of 10th, 1668, Sergeant Cornwell" joined the recently organized church in Middletown.

In 1670 he was assessed in Middletown on £160, which was the fifth largest assessment in the list of fifty-two householders. In the same list his son John was rated at £40, and his sons William and Samuel at £45 each. In 1673 he was rated at £231.

April 7, 1674, he made his will, which he signed with a very feeble hand. In it he speaks of himself as "well stricken in years and much abated in any natural strength."

Nov. 4, 1676, he deeded land on the east side of the Connecticut River to his sons William and Samuel. This deed was witnessed by his son John Cornwell and his son-in-law John Hall, Jr., "by the assignment of their father Sergeant William Cornwell, he not being able to sign it," which shows that the "abatement of his natural strength" alluded to in his will two years before had progressed.

He died in Middletown, Feb. 21, 1678, and was probably buried in the old cemetery by the Connecticut River, though there are no tombstones standing there of so early a date.

His will and inventory are on file in the Hartford Probate office.

"Last will and testament of Sergeant William Cornwell of Middletown.

"Whereas I, William Cornwell, Sr., of Middletown, being well stricken in years and much abated in my natural strength (though, through mercy, in as perfect use of my understanding and memory as ordinarily men are of my years), expecting my change to be very near, as duty binds me to prevent all future trouble in consequence to my children and to others, I do leave this as my last will and testament covering that portion of my outward estate which God hath given me as followeth:

"Imprimis: I give to my son John Cornwell so much addition to his present house lott out of my house lott as may make up his present house lott the full half of the whole, the sayd addition to be taken out next to the dividing line betwixt us. I also give to my said son John the one half of that wood land in the south division of the land beyond the Mill lying below the land of my son William and William Lucas, the other half of said land to my dauter Sarah Cornwell, this land to be equally divided between them. Moreover I give to my son John two acres of the meadow and swamp at the Riverlet at the eastern end of the meadow and swamp to begin next the Riverlet at the end next the boggy meadow and so to carry a straight line north and south through the said meadow and swamp as it divides the line between the aforesaid two acres and the remaining of my meadow at the Riverlet.

"I give to my son William Cornwell ten acres of my land upon the Indian Hill at the east end, the whole breadth of the lot, moreover I give to my said son one third part of my land yet to be divided by the list of 1674 on the east side of the river, the other two thirds of the aforesaid land to my sons Samuel and Thomas equally to be divided between them. I give moreover to my son Samuel one hundred acres of my wood lot at the Long Hill, the remainder to go to my son Jacob. I give moreover to my son Thomas what is aforesayd the remainder of my lott at the Indian Hill, the ten acres as above mentioned being taken out of it.

"I give to my dauter Hester Willcox my whole lot on the east side of the River lying against Goodman Coales swamp at the upper end of the rocks west . . . . . in the pond . . . .

"I give to my dauter Elizabeth Hall one parsell of upland lying in the Boggy meadow quartered between the bounds of Deacon Hall and my son Samuel Cornwell.

"I give my loving wife Mary Cornwell my household, all the buildings, household stuff and moveables whatsoever with the remainder of my meadow at the Riverlet quietly and peacefully to enjoy the same with all the benefits thereof during the term of her widdowhood, and also the whole stock of cattle during the said term. It is also my meaning here and will that while my dauter Sarah continues in single state, living with and being a comfort to her mother, she should have her maintenance out of the same so far as her mother's comfort will allow. After my wife her decease I will the above mentioned house, household and meadow land at the Riverlett, remaining to my son Jacob Cornwell, he to pay all just debts and the charges of my decent funeral out of the same, and also to his sister Sarah Cornwell one third part of the valuation of the forementioned housing and land as shall be offered and invited in current pay of the country within twelve months after his possession of the same. In case my wife in the term above mentioned see cause to change her condition by marriage it is then my will that my loving wife should leave all the household stuff whatsoever to Jacob, he to allow her four pounds sterling a year so long as she live in good current pay of the country in case she find need and demand of him, and that at her decease my three daughters shall have the household stuffs equally divided among them, only my son Samuel to have (upon a former promise) one of the feather beds first taken out and delivered to him, and the long table, joynt stools and bedstead in the new room to be left to Jacob with the house.

"I request my respected and loving brothers and friends Deacon Stocking and Deacon Hall to be my overseers in order to the execution of this my last will and testament which is that it be so in all respects as above mentioned and so left by me. I witness by subscribing my hand and fixing my seal.

His estate was divided among Silence Boardman, Sarah Burton, John Penfield, and the heirs of Jonathan Cornwall, but he may have had children, for in 1730 Capt. II.

THOMAS CORNWALL OF GRAVESEND, L. I.

The brother who, according to family tradition, came to Ne England with William Cornwall, and soon after went to Lor Island, was probably Thomas Cornwall of Gravesend, L.

Hinman, in his "Puritan Settlers of Connecticut," says th Thomas Cornwall came from Hertfordshire, England, wi the Rev. Thomas Hooker, to Massachusetts, September 4, 163 and went with him to Hartford, Conn. He gives no authori for this statement.

But in the early records of Hartford, of the New Netherlan and of Gravesend, L. I., are found references to a Thom Cornwall, who may well have been and probably was tl Thomas Cornwall to whom Hinman refers and of whom tl tradition in William Cornwall's family makes mention.

The Connecticut Colony records state that in Hartfor August 1, 1639, "Thomas Cornewell" was fined thirty shilling for "unseasonable and immoderate drinking at the Pinnace This is the only record of him found in Connecticut.

In the records of the Dutch Reformed Church in Ne Amsterdam we find the following (translated):

"November 2, 1642, Thomas Cornelis, young man, of tl county of Hertford, and Elizabeth Fiscock, young maiden, Plymouth, in England," were married.

We also find in the records of this church account of tl baptism of the children of Thomas Cornwall:

> Elizabeth, bapt. Jan. 12, 1644; sponsors Edward Fiscock and Ma du Trieux.
> Sarah, bapt. Jan. 21, 1646; sponsor Sarah Cornelis.
> Johannah, bapt. August 14, 1650; sponsors John and Jane Haes.
> Marah, bapt. August 14, 1650; sponsors Johannes and Susann Breen. (The last two baptisms were in New Utrecht.)

In these baptismal records his name is spelled Corenwe Carrnwell and Carmuwell.

In 1644 he was a soldier in the employ of the Dutch Gover ment, perhaps under command of Captain John Underhill, wl had been Captain Mason's lieutenant in the Connecticut exp dition against the Pequot Indians in 1637, and who shortly after that date transferred his allegiance to the Dutch Government at New Amsterdam, to which he rendered, in 1645, very important services. The Dutch Colonial records under date of July 7, 1644, tell how Steven Stevenson and Thomas Mabbs tried to kill "Thomas Cornil" in Flatlands, Long Island; and under date of November 22, 1644, they inform us that "William Woodheyt, a soldier from Yorkshire, and Thomas Cornel, a soldier from Hertfordshire," were found guilty of desertion.

Before Sept. 12, 1645, he joined the English settlers who had gathered with Lady Henry Moody at Gravesend, Long Island. The Gravesend town records tell us that on that date "Thomas Cornwell" accused Ambrose London of stealing one of his hens. London was compelled by the authorities to restore the hen, and in revenge he publicly stated that Thomas Cornwell was "a thief and a rogue," whereupon Thomas Cornwell sued him for slander. Oct. 28, 1648, he bought a cow and heifer of Henry Brasier. Nov. 22, 1648, he leased all of Lady Moody's "broken land," except one piece, with four yoke of oxen and four cows, for 60 guilders and 10 skipples of wheat per annum. March 21, 1650, he bought a yoke of oxen of J. Hathaway. May 5, 1650, he had a dispute with Lady Moody about the conditions of his lease.

Sept. 9, 1650, his widow, Elizabeth, married John Morrice in Gravesend. The record of this marriage is preceded by the statement that "Thomas Cornwell died and was buried."

Jan. 9, 1651, the estate of Thomas Cornwell of Gravesend was settled by the court. He was found to have left a widow, Elizabeth, who was married to John Morrice, and four small children, viz.: Elizabeth, aged about seven years; Sarah, aged about four years, Johanna, aged about three years, and Marah, aged about one and a half years. His estate, which amounted to about 600 guilders, was given to John Morrice on his agreement to maintain the four daughters of Thomas Cornwall and to pay to each of them 100 guilders on the day of her marriage.

III.

Whether or not this Thomas Cornwall was a relative William Cornwall of Middletown we have no means of po tively ascertaining. Their arrival at about the same time Boston, the similarity in the names of their children and t probable fact that they came from adjoining counties in Er land suggest a relationship; and the fact that this Thom Cornwall went to the New Netherlands the year after the otl Thomas, the probable brother of William, was married the may also have a bearing on the relationship.

The earliest account which we have of this Thomas Cornw in America is found in the town records of Boston, Mas under date of August 20, 1638:

"At a meeting this day there is license granted to Mr. Thom Cornnell for the buying of our brother Wilyam Balstone's hou and to become an inhabitant of this town."

He was allowed to keep a tavern in this house "on tria but in the next year, June 6, 1639, he was fined £30 for "selli wine without a license and beer at 2d. per quart"; but he w "abated £10 of the fine, and allowed a month to sell of l beare wch is upon his hands, and then to cease from keepi intertainment, and the town to provide another."

In 1640 "Mr. Cornewell" sold the house in Boston, whi he had bought of William Balstone, to Edward Tynge, a removed to Portsmouth, R. I. August 6, 1640, "Thom Cornil" was made a freeman in Rhode Island.

In 1643 he went with Mr. Throckmorton's company to t New Netherlands, and settled at Throgg's Neck. This Engl company was said by John Winthrop to have "cast off churcl and ordinances, and for larger accommodation subjected the selves to the Dutch." While he was at Throgg's Neck t settlement was attacked by hostile Indians, who "killed su of Mr. Throckmorton's and Mr. Cornhill's families as were at home." In 1646 "Thomas Coornel" received a grant of 700 acres of land in Westchester, N. Y., from the Dutch Government, which was afterwards occupied by some of his descendants. He soon after returned to Portsmouth, R. I., where he received a grant of 160 acres of land, Feb. 14, 1647. He died in Rhode Island in 1656.

He was born about 1595 in Essex, England. That Essex was his place of origin is an inference from the fact that in the record of his daughter Sarah's marriage in New Amsterdam in 1646 she is called "of Essex in England."

His wife was Rebecca Briggs, whom he married in England. She died in 1673. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was that she was sitting by an open fireplace smoking a pipe and fell asleep, and that while asleep a coal from her pipe or the fireplace set fire to her clothing, so that she was burned to death before she awoke, or awoke too late. Under this verdict she was buried, but her brother, John Briggs, shortly after she was buried, had a dream in which she appeared to him and exclaimed, "See how I was burned with fire!" This dream was interpreted to mean that she was set fire to, and as her son Thomas was the last person seen with her, it was argued that he it must have been who set fire to her. He was tried and, principally on the evidence of this dream, convicted of having murdered her and hung. He proclaimed his innocence to the last, and the first coroner's verdict seems to be the correct one. At any rate, it is the testimony of all in recent times who have read the records of this strange trial which are still in existence, that no jury in these days would have found him guilty on the evidence; and Judge Durfee, in his Legal Tracts of Rhode Island, comments on the strangeness and injustice of the execution; and Austin, in his Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island, says that "the evidence in this case would seem to have been in its way conclusive."

The children of Thomas Cornwall and Rebecca Briggs were:

V.

THE SPELLING OF THE NAME.

The surname Cornwall is a place name taken from the Southwesternmost county of England. It means the corn or promontory of Wales (Welch, Gaels).

In Colonial records in this country, as well as in early English records, the name is spelled in a great variety of ways. This is the case with most other English names. It is only recently, that is, within about one hundred years, that the spelling of English names has become fixed.

In the first record of William Cornwall's name found in America (1633) it is spelled Cornewell. In his only two known autographs (1648 and 1674) it appears as Cornell. In Connecticut records during the Colonial period we find the following variations: Cornewell, Cornewel, Cornwall, Cornwal, Cornelle, Cornell, Cornel, Corniel, Cornil, Cornal, Cornwill, Cornwil. Of these different forms the two most frequently used were Cornwell and Cornell. After the Revolution the form Cornell disappeared among the descendants of William Cornwall, and at the present time the forms Cornwall and Cornwell about equally divide the usage of his descendants, though Cornwall seems to be supplanting Cornwell.

The name of Thomas Cornwall, reputed brother of William of Middletown, is spelled Cornewell in the only record of it found in Connecticut (1639). In the Dutch records of New York the name appears as Cornelis, Corenwell, Corrnwell, Cormuwell, Cornel and Cornil. In the records of Gravesend, L. I., it is spelled Cornwell.

The name of Thomas Cornwall of Rhode Island was spelled in Boston, Mass., before 1640, as follows: Cornewell, Cornnell, Connell, Cornel, Cornhil, Cornehill; and in Rhode Island and New York, during Colonial times, Cornwall, Cornwell, Cornell, Cornel, Cornhill, Cornhil, Cornil and Coornell.

In early English records variations have been noticed in the spelling all the way from Cornewaylle to Kornal.

VI.

EARLY ENGLISH CORNWALLS.

In England, as in America, Cornwall has never been a very common name, though it is found there as a surname for seven hundred years. Being the name of a county it was less likely to be assumed as a place surname than the names of towns and parishes, more immediate residences. In the case of some of the "original" Cornwalls the surname was derived from a nobleman who bore the name in his title. Such was the case with Richard de Cornwall, ancestor of many of the name in England, of whose family down to about 1600 a partial pedigree is here given. This Richard was undoubtedly ancestor of a family of Cornwalls (of Haverell, Essex), who lived in Essex contemporary with and antecedent to the emigration of William Cornwall to New England; and because there is reason to suppose that William Cornwall came from Hertfordshire, which county immediately adjoins Essex, and because it was in a region of Essex immediately adjoining Hertfordshire that most of the Essex Cornwalls contemporary with William lived, and because Thomas Cornwall of Rhode Island, who came to New England at about the same time as William, was almost certainly from Essex,—for these reasons attention has been first directed in searching for William Cornwall's English ancestry, to the early Cornwalls of Essex and to the ancestor of some or all of them, Richard de Cornwall.

The above pedigree of the family of Richard de Cornwall is brought down only to the beginning of the seventeenth century. It is not complete, and there were doubtless many offshoots from it.

The foregoing account of the Haverell Cornwalls in the Visitation of 1552 must have been inserted in that Visitation later than 1552, for it speaks of John Cornwall, who married second the widow of Verney, as dead. The parish Register of Yardeley, Herts, (where he owned an estate brought to him by his second wife) gives his death date as 1561 and states that he was buried alive! His daughter Jane, who was baptized 1554, inherited the manor of Yardeley and lands in Stebbing, Essex. She married George Chauncy, who was father by another wife of Charles Chauncy, who came to New England and was one of the early presidents of Harvard College and ancestor of the Chauncys of New England.

Thomas Cornwall, father of the same John, possessed the manor of Fairstead, Essex, in 1558.

Cornwalls of Scotland and Ireland.

The name Cornwall is found in Scotland as early as the twelfth century. The first of the name is said to have come from the County of Cornwall, and to have taken his surname from that county. In the seventeenth century there was a family of Cornwalls in Bonhard, parish of Cariden, Linlithgow, Scotland, whose arms were: gules, a fess betwixt 3 kaes, Cornwall, sable, backed and membered of the first betwixt, also as many molets or. Above the crest an helmet befitting his degree, mantled gules, dabbled argent. Next is placed on a torse for a crest, a kee of Cornwale hatching in face of a rock, ppr. The motto: We big you see warily. The first authentic Cornwall of this line was Patrick Cornwall of Balnehard, who had a charter in 1449.

William de Cornwall had lands in Cluny of Fife, 1370.

Mr. Richard Cornell was Archdeacon of Dunkeld, 1406.

In 1610 John Cornwall was sub-sheriff of Tyrone, Ire. He was probably an Englishman.

The foregoing notes of English Cornwalls show to a slight extent the distribution of the name in Great Britain at the time William Cornwall emigrated to New England and before. It is hoped that they will be of assistance in suggesting lines of investigation to some future investigator who is willing to devote to the search for William Cornwall's English connection the time and labor necessary to carry it to a successful issue.
